Carolyn Henry, DVM, MS

Dr. Carolyn Henry received a bachelor of science degree in animal science and biology with a minor in chemistry, graduating magna cum laude from Eastern Kentucky University. She went on to earn a doctor of veterinary medicine cum laude and master's degree in small animal surgery and medicine at Auburn University.

She began her career working in an animal clinic in Alabama and as an emergency care veterinarian in Alabama and Georgia before pursuing a residency in veterinary oncology at Auburn. She joined the faculty of the University of Missouri in 1997 as an assistant professor of oncology. In 2001, she received a dual appointment with the MU School of Medicine. Henry became the first American College of Veterinary Internal Medicine board-certified oncologist at MU.

She was appointed a professor of oncology in both the College of Veterinary Medicine and the School of Medicine in 2008. Dr. Henry was recently named associate dean for the Office of Research and Graduate Studies.

William Eward, DVM, MD

Dr. Will Eward is a rare individual who has a foot in both human and animal medicine possessing both DVM and MD degrees.

He received his veterinary degree from Auburn University College of Veterinary Medicine in 2000 and followed that with an internship in small animal medicine and surgery at Ontario Veterinary College in Guelph, Ontario. After his internship, he returned to Auburn for a clinical fellowship in small animal sports medicine. He obtained his medical degree from the University of Vermont-College of Medicine in 2006.

Will moved to North Carolina to complete a residency in orthopedic surgery at Duke University and completed a clinical fellowship in musculoskeletal oncology at the University of Toronto in 2012. He is currently an assistant professor of orthopedic oncology at the Duke Cancer Institute. He continues to pursue veterinary medicine at a specialty clinic.

Lisa Willis, DVM, MS

Dr. Lisa Willis was raised in western Colorado and grew up riding mules on hunting trips in the Rocky Mountains.

She completed graduate studies in Equine Reproduction at Texas A&M University and worked for two years as the personal assistant to Dr. Tom Riddle of Rood and Riddle Equine Hospital in Lexington, KY.

Dr. Willis studied veterinary medicine at Auburn University and later worked for Elgin Veterinary Hospital prior to moving to Texas and opening Mid-Texas Veterinary Associates, PC. She works with other veterinarians throughout the country to bring the best care possible to animals.

Dr. Henry Baker, DVM

Dr. Henry Baker, Professor Emeritus of Pathobiology at Auburn University, is a 1960 graduate. He was honored by the AVMA in 2014 with the Lifetime Excellence in Research Award, recognized for his more than 40 years of pioneering research into the pathogenesis of neurologic dysfunction associated with inherited lysosomal diseases – Gangliosidosis (GM1) – which involves characterizing the molecular defect in some fatal inherited diseases of children, dogs and cats.

Early in his professional career, Dr. Baker helped establish the Department of Comparative Medicine at the University of Alabama in Birmingham in 1968. He served there until 1986, including the position of chairman for 11 years.

Dr. Baker was at Wake Forest University before returning to Auburn in 1991 to direct the Scott-Ritchey Research Center. From 1992 to 1997, he was also AU's Associate Vice President for Research and Director of University Animal Resources. In 2004 he won the Pfizer Animal Health Award for Research Excellence from the College of Veterinary Medicine.

In addition to his many years of ground-breaking research, Dr. Baker has contributed to and served in an editorial capacity for numerous scholarly journals. His editorial contributions include serving as the former editor-in-chief of the AAVMC's Journal of Veterinary Medical Education.
