The Rolling Tigers Booster Club is an organization that supports wheelchair sports at Auburn University. The club was inspired by Mobile native, Dr. Jared Rehm, who was born with spina bifida and became the first wheelchair athlete to compete for Auburn University. Dr. Rehm is currently an Assistant Professor of Exercise Science/Biomechanics at Huntingdon College.

AU is one of eight universities competing within the Intercollegiate Division of the National Wheelchair Basketball Association. Other participating schools include Edinboro University of Pennsylvania, The University of Alabama, University of Illinois, University of Missouri, University of Texas-Arlington, and Southwest Minnesota State University.

Proceeds from the 2015 Bash have:

- Supported two graduate student assistants:
 - One as an athletic trainer who works with players to prevent and rehabilitate injuries and collaborates with the School of Kinesiology (one of the top 15 Kinesiology programs in the country) to study wheelchair athletes
 - One as interim head coach (graduated with a dual master's degree)
- Provided for all travel, meals, and equipment
- Provided team travel to Tuscaloosa, Kansas, and Edinboro
- Enabled the hosting of an Intercollegiate Tournament at Auburn University
- 1st Intercollegiate Division tournament at AU
- Provided great promotion of the program to student body and administration
